Day one introduces the main concepts and research evidence for a dual language pedagogical approach for pupils who 'live in two or more languages'.

Day two applies this knowledge to Roma communities in Romania. We will learn about the many Romani dialects and together think of ways of adapting a dual language pedagogical approach to support Roma pupils in Romania.

Local speakers include:

Ionel Cordovan Teacher of Roma

Ionel is involved in standardizing the Roma language in Romania and in adapting the curricula to Roma.

Nicu Gal

Nicu Gal established the People to People Foundation in response to the plight of the abandoned child.

Daniela Tutos Educational expert

Daniela has developed literacy courses, second chance programs and after school programmes.

International speakers include:

Professor Fred Dervin

Helsinki University, Finland

Prof. Dervin specializes in intercultural education, and the sociology of multiculturalism. He has published over 20 books.

Associate Professor Leena Robertson

Middlesex University, United Kingdom

Leena researches the needs of adult learners from both traditional and non-traditional academic backgrounds, as well as those from various international backgrounds.

Associate Professor Brahim Azaoui

Aix-Marseille University, France

Brahim researches plurilingualism, teaching gestures, multimodal classroom interactions, context-sensitive teacher/student identity, and discourse in interaction analysis.

Dr Heather Smith

Newcastle University, United Kingdom

Heather's underlying research interest lies in equity in education. She researches the role of racism, whiteness and monolingual norms in education inequity.
